APPLIED DESIGN SKILLS AND TECHNOLOGIES 7 Craig Buchholz Burnett

EXTENDING

In Term 3, students explored storytelling, music creation, and digital media. They made comics by learning about panel design, dialogue layout, and visual pacing, and they used GarageBand to compose original songs with loops, virtual instruments, live recordings, and effects.

Pinta showed strong creative thinking across her comic and music projects. Her work was thoughtful and well designed. She has a strong interest in developing her creative skills. She should keep building on this interest through digital projects over the summer.

Arts Education 7A Fretche Fanuga (Fretche)

EXTENDING

Pinta is a conscientious and reliable student who consistently demonstrates responsibility in completing her art projects. Her portrait project showed careful attention to shading and value, with a thoughtful use of highlights and shadows. Pinta efficiently utilizes class time, maintains focus, and ensures timely submission of her work. She demonstrates strong self-management and reflects meaningfully on her artistic process. Her craftsmanship is neat, and she approaches all her assignments with a positive attitude. Pinta is encouraged to continue developing her artistic confidence by exploring more ambitious ideas and media. She embodies learner traits, especially being a principled and balanced learner. With continued practice, she will grow even further as a visual communicator. Pinta is a valued and consistent contributor to the art classroom.

Career Education 7 Craig Buchholz Burnett

PROFICIENT

In Term 3, students continued exploring their futures through two major units: career studies and financial literacy. They researched different careers and interviewed adults about their work. They then learned how to manage money by examining needs and wants, calculating expenses and income, and building sample budgets for different situations.

Pinta showed consistent focus in class and completed her work with care. She could challenge herself more by taking on new ideas or trying deeper reflections. Her calm and steady attitude helps her stay on track.

English Language Arts 7 Nichole Khayat

EXTENDING

In term three, we completed a personal narrative that the students were required to focus on writing using all the elements of a narrative. They also read the novel The Giver by Lois Lowry. Students worked with comprehension, vocabulary, and analysis skills as we read the novel. They built connections between the dystopian novel and the world they currently live in. Students created thoughtful predictions and developed their independent reading strategies to help them become stronger readers in the next school year. Pinta is a star in this class. She is consistent in her work. Every assignment, she consistently exceeds expectations. It is clear she understands every skill we work on and studies to the point where she has not missed a point on any assessment given. In activities, she is respectful to her peers and works well with others. It has been great to see her become more comfortable in the classroom and grow as an individual. Her maturity and effort stand out amongst others, and I hope she continues this work ethic into next year. Over the summer, Pinta needs to keep reading to maintain her progress thus far. A phenomenal job this year, Pinta.

Fitness 7 Ryan Holt

EXTENDING

Pinta has shown strong commitment and motivation throughout the fitness elective, consistently putting in great effort and aiming for continuous improvement. She approaches each session with focus and determination, actively working to enhance her physical abilities and skills. Additionally, she is developing a solid understanding of safe practices in both gym and sports settings, along with a growing awareness of how to maintain a balanced and healthy body.

Mandarin 7 Bingjie Lin	EXTENDING
Pinta is a conscientious learner who participates in class attentively and shows a steady understanding of Mandarin. As for the classroom instructions, she has made noticeable progress in recognizing Chinese characters, pinyin, and stroke order. Her ability to recall vocabulary and use it in simple contexts reflects her growing proficiency. She can write basic Hanzi with pinyin support and demonstrated her understanding of food vocabulary by creating an authentic Chinese menu, applying learned words practically. Pinta's diligence and good habit in learning can serve as a great example to her peers. To further study, watching some Chinese videos or online stories or listening to some Chinese podcasts could help her reinforce familiar words and pick up new ones in context.
Mathematics 7 Jeffrey Wortburg	EXTENDING
Pinta had a wonderful term, exceeding expectations. She works hard, asks thoughtful questions, and enjoys learning. Her 22/25 on the Probability Quiz is a testament to her commitment. Well done, Pinta!
Music 7A Chatchawan Suthikasem (Nu)	PROFICIENT
Pinta performed with confidence and made steady progress in her vocal work this term. Her consistent participation and positive attitude placed her in the Proficient category. It was great having her in class and seeing her involved in school events. All the best!
Physical Education 7A Ryan Holt	EXTENDING
Pinta is a courteous and respectful student who demonstrates a genuine interest in both the physical and social aspects of Physical Education. She approaches each activity with energy and a positive mindset, showing a strong willingness to collaborate with peers. Pinta consistently puts forth solid effort and approaches tasks thoughtfully, reflecting a commitment to improving physical skills and contributing to team success. Her supportive nature, effective communication, and teamwork positively influence the class and highlight a balanced and mature attitude toward learning in PE. Volleyball is a challenging and demanding sport that requires dedication, focus, and consistent effort to succeed. Pinta demonstrated a strong commitment to developing her core skills—bumping, setting, and serving—and made noticeable progress in each area. Her dedication and improvement earned her a well-deserved place on the Girls ISAA volleyball team. In the handball unit, Pinta quickly grasped the rules of the game and brought high energy to each match—relentlessly pursuing the ball on defense and consistently finding open space to support offensive plays. Overall, Pinta has had a successful year in PE and is well-positioned to continue developing physically, mentally, and socially in Grade 8. By showing greater assertiveness in group settings, she can further strengthen her contributions and begin to fully step into her potential as a future leader.
Science 7 Eugene Landsberg	PROFICIENT
During the third term, Grade 7 Science class began by completing the topic of Elements and Compounds (Chemistry), followed by the final unit of Diversity and Evolution (Biology). For the chemistry topic, students had the opportunity to take part in a number of hands-on practical tasks, including creating crystals and designing their own unique Periodic Table. To finish off the year, students worked on a Science Fair project which involved them choosing their own interesting topic to explore, creating an experiment and finally communicating the results of their experiment.
Pinta displays excellent creativity in expressing ideas and engaging with tasks and projects. She continued to perform at a high level by providing excellent classwork. Keep up the excellent work, Pinta.

2024-2025 TERM 3 2024-2025 REPORT CARD

CLASSES

T3

This year in Social Studies, students explored a wide range of topics, from early human history to ancient civilizations. In Term 3, they completed a major project on Ancient Greece and proudly presented their work to other grades. Their research and presentations showed strong collaboration, creativity, and a deepening understanding of history. After that, we moved into the story of Ancient Rome, starting from its founding myths and the rise of the Republic, to Rome's military expansion, the fall of the Republic, and the beginning of the Empire. Students examined the rule of important emperors, learned about Rome's wars like the Punic Wars, and explored its time of peace during the Pax Romana. We ended by thinking about how the empire started to fall, which they will explore more next year. It's been a term full of great questions, thoughtful reflections, and exciting learning.

Pinta worked quietly but effectively this term. Her Greece project was organized and clearly showed the main ideas. She followed the Ancient Rome unit with focus and asked questions when she needed help. With a bit more confidence, she can grow even more. I believe she will continue to improve and succeed in the future!

Thai Culture 7A Lawan Joy

EXTENDING

Pinta has an excellent understanding of Thai culture. She can explain Thai traditions, important days, and Songkran very clearly. She participates actively in class and always finishes her work on time.

Thai Language Arts 7A Lawan Joy

EXTENDING

Pinta has an excellent grasp of Thai language skills. She speaks and writes clearly with great fluency. She can read and analyze Thai literature very well. She is highly responsible and always submits assignments on time with care.
